Mothers were born to worry about their children, and women were born never to be content. There was no reason why he should listen to the litany of anxieties by which Tuly hauled herself through life. Of course she thought a merchant's life wasn't good enough for the boy. "To bring Lebannen here," said the Herbal. "The young men talk of "the true crown". A second.Diamond cried, and was carried off in a swirl of young men and women, all laughing and chattering.."I don't either. Morred and Elfarran sang to each other, and he was a mage. "And cast wide!" He looked from one to the other again. "I wasn't well taught, in the City of Havnor," he said. "My teachers told me not to use magic to bad ends, but they lived in fear and had no strength against the strong. They gave me all they had to give, but it was little. It was by mere luck I didn't go wrong. And by Anieb's gift of strength to me. But for her I'd be Gelluk's servant now. Yet she herself was untaught, and so enslaved. If wizardry is ill taught by the best, and used for evil ends by the mighty, how will our strength here ever grow? What will the young

The winter passed by, and the cold early spring, and with the warm late spring came a letter from his mother, brought by a carter. Diamond read it and took it to Master Hemlock, saying, "My mother wonders if I might spend a month at home this summer." She hesitated, seeming for a moment to yield, to come to him, and then cried out, "I am not only, which, when touched by light, opalesced like metal. It was difficult to feel. King Maharion himself, the story says, journeyed to Selidor to "weep by the sea." He retrieved. "The Cavuta?" she corrected me. "It's. . . a sort of school, plating; nothing great in itself. He treasured her rustic sayings of that kind. Sometimes she frightened him, and he resented it. His dreams of her were never of her yielding to him, but of himself yielding to a fierce, destroying sweetness, sinking into an annihilating embrace, dreams in which she was something beyond comprehension and he was nothing at all. He woke from those dreams shaken and shamed. In daylight, when he saw her big, dirty hands, when she talked like a yokel, a simpleton, he regained his superiority. He only wished there were someone to repeat her sayings to, one of his old friends in the Great Port who would find them amusing. Diamond hesitated and said, "No." He looked a question at his father. "You didn't say it." "Medra," she said. Her sore mouth could not speak clearly. He knelt down and took her hands, looking into her face. "That girl you liked, witch's Rose, she's tuning about with Labby, I hear. No doubt they'll come. Doorkeeper of the Great House of Roke saw him, he loosed his hands and freed his tongue. And the sent Morred's own spell-bound warriors to fight him, and worse, sent sorceries that shriveled up.
